

I feel the Indiana telemarketing privacy law is one of its best and most appreciated accomplishments. A less firm law would be pointless. It is truly a pleasure to be relieved from the bothersome and unwanted intrusions of telemarketing. Paying for phone service should provide personal communication, not a path for advertising. My mother is in her 80's and is also on the no-call list. This is equally important to the elderly quality of living. We plead you do not lessen this law.
